Municipal election calendar is set

BELLE GLADE — Potential candidates for the city's September election can begin qualifying July 11, according to City Clerk H. H. Boglioli.

The calendar for the forthcoming election to fill two vacancies occurring on the city commission, has been released by Mrs. Boglioli.

Date for the municipal election has been set for Sept. 9 with a run-off election, if necessary, to be held Sept. 16.

Qualifying dates for incoming candidates will run from July 11 to Aug. 20, Mrs. Boglioli reports.

Voters have until Aug. 9 to register.

Mrs. Boglioli reminds anyone interested in qualifying as a candidate in the 1980 municipal election that copies of laws regarding candidate qualification requirements and election campaign financing are now available at the city clerk's office at City Hall, 110 SW Ave. E.

Two city-wide representatives will be elected in September. The Group No. 1 seat is presently held by Thomas L. Altman and the Group 2 seat by W.R. Kirk.

Kirk and Altman say they will run again

BELLE GLADE — Although the first qualifying day for candidates in the September city election is still more than three weeks away, both Mayor W. Ralph Kirk and Commissioner Tom Altman say they plan to run again.

The two-year terms of both commissioners expire this year and both are at-large city representatives.

The 28-year-old Altman, who has previously served two terms as mayor, will be seeking his fourth term on the commission.

Mayor Kirk, who recently turned 65, will be seeking his sixth two-year term.

Kirk's decision to seek re-election may come as a surprise to some since he announced in 1978 that it was the last term he would serve on the commission.

"I had mixed feelings about running again," Kirk said this week. "I did and I didn't want to run." But he has been approached by a number people, he says, who have asked him to run again. "So I'll go one more time," he said.

Kirk is an agent for the Peninsular Life Insurance Co. and resides at 172 NE 3rd St. with his wife, Ruby. The Kirks have four children, all grown and living elsewhere. He is a member of Community United Methodist Church, the Elks, the Masons, and is a charter member of the Belle Glade Lions Club.

Altman is a stockbroker with E.F. Hutton, Inc. A communicant of St. John's Episcopal Church, he is also a member of the Belle Glade Lions Club and its board of directors.

In addition he serves on the Palm Beach County Solid Waste Authority, the county's Area Planning Board, and its League of Urban Municipalities. Tom and his wife, Deborah, are the parents of two young sons, Patrick and Parker, and reside at 809 NE 22 st.

Tax revolt is gaining strength

BELLE GLADE — Coordinators of the state's employment and unemployment services are expected to arrive here Thursday from Tallahassee to meet with some local businessmen protesting unemployment benefits being paid to the able-bodied when jobs are available.

Word that the Tallahassee officials would be here was announced by Roy Rausch, who has spearheaded the local protest.

Rausch launched his campaign in May in a talk given at a Belle Glade Lions Club meeting. As manager of the local Labor Force office, an employment agency for temporary workers, Rausch maintains he can't find laborers for jobs although there are lines of people at the Florida Employment office collecting unemployment payments, he says.

Rausch has been urging businessmen to withhold quarterly payments to the insurance fund and holding them in escrow as a means of protest and to get the attention of state legislators in order to correct what he calls "abuses of the system."

Since May, Rausch says supporters of his proposal have been sending letters and newspaper articles to state legislators. That's where we're getting the results from.

Last Monday, Rausch, City Commissioner Randy Davidson and Milton Carpenter met with two state representatives in West Palm Beach.

Eleanor Weinstein of District 80 and James Watt, District 79.

Rausch describes the meetings as "highly successful" with Mrs. Weinstein indicating she will support the effort, and Watt also expressing his cooperation.

Rausch says it is his intention to "wipe out unemployment benefits, employment service, food stamps and social services—the whole shooting match. There's no way to make the present system work."

Along with Carpenter and Davidson, Rausch said Ed Workman, a former job counselor with Florida State Employment Service, would meet with the state employment service.

Chamber starts election in July

BELLE GLADE — The need for representation from the Black and the Cuban communities was expressed by Chamber of Commerce directors in discussing forthcoming nominations to the board.

Terms of four directors expire in October and nominations from the membership for their successors are being sought for consideration next month.

The board of directors serves as the nominating committee and after selecting the slate of nominees from membership input, ballots are distributed for voting.

Directors whose terms are ending include James Gann, Bill Magill, Thomas Bonavia and Charles Ward.

Meeting Thursday in the Chamber offices, the board began initial planning for the annual Chamber-sponsored regatta to be held Nov. 12.

Noting that the event has not been a money raiser in the past, directors first debated whether the regatta should be continued as a tradition even if it loses money. The board consequently decided to hold a chicken barbecue preceding the boat races.

In order to stage the event, the Chamber has an initial outlay of $867 to include prize money, sanction fee, insurance, and trophy purchases. The regatta is sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association.

In addition, the promoter, Edward Hauptner, had requested courtesy meal tickets for all boat drivers. Directors agreed to provide Hauptner with 50 tickets at cost price instead, on the recommendation of Police Chief D. Bill Mathis.

Arrangements for the chicken barbecue dinner will be handled by the Port Committee. The regatta chairman will be named at the next meeting.

In other business, the board:

• Heard a report that the new city maps should be received by the end of the month.

• Heard a report that the membership total is currently 234 as compared with 220 in June of last year with 30 new members so far this year, compared with 17 last year. Directors agreed to personally contact delinquent members who have not responded to letters concerning membership dues.

• Appointed Lynette Thompson chairman of the annual banquet with the date, location and speaker to be determined.

PBJC staff gets 9.5% pay raise

Acting on a request from the administration, Palm Beach Junior College trustees have granted a 9.5 percent pay increase for non-instructional staff to take effect July 1.

Additional individual increases were also given a number of employees. The across-the-board increase affects all non-bargaining unit employees.

Two faculty appointments have also been approved by trustees. Reuben Hale has been named chairman of the Art Department and Dr. James Howell, formerly with Florida International University, as director of Institutional Research.

1980 census goes on and on and on

More than 100 census takers are presently canvassing Belle Glade, South Bay and Pahokee, counting the people missed in the April 1 census-by-mail.

Another 27 enumerators were tested at the Belle Glade Florida State Employment office Monday night to provide additional personnel in a head count of the Glades which is expected to continue through August.

According to Luciano Martinez, Census Bureau district manager in West Palm Beach, everyone in the Glades who didn't receive a census form in the mail or who hasn't returned one can expect a visit from a census taker.

Census takers are now working from a master address list housed in the district office, Martinez said, which has been revised and updated from original data.

"Everyone should have received a census form in the initial mail out. Unfortunately, this was not the case," said Martinez.

"Many, many forms were brought back to the office," he said, mostly because of incomplete addresses or because they were sent to post office boxes.

The original address lists were prepared from postal service mailing lists and from commercial lists. And according to Martinez, "across the district and throughout Florida, there were problems."

Census Bureau district offices are slated to begin local review programs, a procedure which will allow municipalities to review census figures and question areas they disagree on.

According to Martinez, preliminary figures should be available here the first week in July for local review.

According to a report issued last week by the Census Bureau's Washington, D.C. office the 409 temporary census district offices are due to close soon after the local reviews are completed. Official final results are scheduled to be released in the fall.

Citizens' move possibility to get South Bay school rebuilt

SOUTH BAY — The possibility of a citizens' movement to press for rebuilding the South Bay Elementary School was voiced last night at a meeting of the city commission.

The proposal came from Byron Walker who attended the session and asked commissioners whether anyone had raised the question of a citizens' movement to have the Palm Beach County School Board replace the building recently closed because of its unsafe condition.

In reply to Walker's question, Mayor David Tanner said it is estimated that it would cost $150,000 to renovate the old building and that the county is reportedly moving toward a three-community consolidated school rather than replacing individual schools.

Acting City Manager Lomax Harrelle said school officials have told him that "under no conditions will a new school be built in South Bay. The plans call for additional portable classrooms to be located at the Rosenwald School, he said.

Reference was made to the fact that a new school is to be built in Wellington and Walker said, "Let them have the portables."

Pointing out that the lack of a school would have an effect on people deciding to move into the city, Walker said, "I think we should show some concern and interest in a new school."

"We give in too quick to those people," he said, adding that he intended to talk with other people and try to generate some interest. "I'll get back to you at the next meeting," he told commissioners.

Another resident appeared before commissioners to complain about cable television interfering with reception. John Arthur told commissioners he is not a cable TV subscriber but his set is picking up the programs. The result is a black stripe down the picture and "double vision," he said.

Arthur said he had written the cable television firm and had contacted the FCC but that in five months he has had no reply.

Mayor Tanner requested Harrelle to investigate the problem with the city-furnished cable TV firm.

In other business the board:

Approved advertisements in professional journals seeking applicants for the post of city manager.

Set July 29 as the meeting date for a single commission session in July.

Tabled action on selecting a new health insurance plan for city employees until the next session to give commissioners time to review the proposals.

Rice field day is planned July 23

BELLE GLADE — A rice field day will be held July 23, co-sponsored by the Palm Beach County Cooperative Extension Service and the Agricultural Research and Education Center.

The Glades area and is familiar with some of the special potential disease problems inherent to area soils and climate.

A tour of the commercial fields at 1:30 p.m. is designed to acquaint those attending from outside the Everglades with area commercial rice production.

A Dutch treat lunch will be served at noon.

5-year-old girl survives drowning

BELLE GLADE — Five-year old Jennifer Blakely survived drowning Monday because of two teen-age college students had a basic knowledge of life-saving procedures.

The near-tragedy occurred Monday afternoon in the swimming pool at the Everglades Athletic Club on Tab Road, Donna Adams, 19, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Don Adams, Pahokee, was swimming alone when she noticed the child lying at the bottom of the pool and pulled her out.

"She had stopped breathing and she was turning purple," Donna recalled after the emergency was over.

Donna, her sister, Beth, and two friends, Karen Parrish and Elena Serra began the effort of reviving the child.

"Neither Karen nor I are certified in CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation)," said Donna. But both girls have had instruction in it.

According to Donna, a student at Florida State University, Karen applied pressure to the little girl's diaphragm while Donna gave her artificial respiration. The other two young women helped steady the child's feet and to keep her head tilted back.

Their efforts were rewarded by the youngster regaining consciousness. Firemen/EMTs responded to a call at the pool at 1:49 p.m. and transferred the child to Glades General Hospital where she was admitted and later released.

According to Donna, there is no lifeguard at the pool on Monday. Jennifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Blakely, 157 SE 4th St., was in the charge of a teen-age aunt.

Karen Parrish is the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parrish of Belle Glade and a student at Palm Beach College.

SIGN OF THE TIMES. As temperatures climbed into the 90's this week, Belle Glade's Holiday Inn sign said it all. And the wind chill factor is zilch, we might add.

John B. Coffey announces for U.S. Senate

Glades County's John B. Coffey Thursday, June 5, announced his candidacy for the United States Senate seat currently held by Richard Stone.

The 59-year-old Coffey becomes the fifth Democrat to enter the race. The others are Stone, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter, State Senator Kenneth McKay, and Tampa oil distributor Jim Williams.

Six Republicans are in the race: former State Representative Ander Crenshaw, Ocala attorney Lewis Dinkins, former Conn. Gov. Lou Frey, former Public Service Commission member Paula Hawkins, Miami attorney Ellis Rubin, and State Senator John Ware.

"I have delayed my decision to announce in hope that one of the previously announced candidates would speak to the issues that must be addressed if we are to survive as a successful democratic society. None was so spoken, and view of the new paralysis of our political system because of the conflicting demands of the various special interests. It must be expected that of the 'professional' political candidates, none will. So I will try. I feel I have no choice," said Coffey.

"I am utterly convinced that the trend of our policies in the Middle East, if unchanged, will lead to destruction of our economy and our democracy here at home, as we futilely and needlessly attempt to impose the Carter-Ortiz-Stone version of a Pax Americana on that most heavily armed and unstable area of the world. An area united only in the determination - except for Egypt, and Israel, who both desperately need American aid - that they want no intrusion from either America or Russia," he said.

Coffey was born in Northern Georgia in 1921, just outside Chattanooga, Tenn. During World War Two, he was a volunteer flying officer, as were his two brothers. The youngest brother was killed during the war. The oldest brother was killed in 1949 while flying for the United States Air Force Reserve, and a few months after taking office as a U.S. Congressman in Pennsylvania.

Coffey served as a B-17 lead navigator during the Second World War in the European Theater. His military service was interrupted by four years of studies at the University of Miami where he earned a BBA.

He returned to the military in 1950, serving for the next seven years as a navigator-bombardier on B-50, B-47, and B-52 nuclear bombers.

From 1957-1962, he served as war plans officer for B-52 units. He was chief of the War Plans Branch, Inspector General, 8th Air Force Strategic Air Command from 1962 to 1964.

He served as chief of war plans with the 13th Air Division at Homestead Air Force Base from 1964 to 1966. He also assisted the Colombian General Staff in developing a combined forces National Command Center during this time.

From 1966 to 1969, he was a planning and programming officer for HQ, United States Air Force, Europe. For one year he was chief of planning for USAF nonconventional warfare in Europe. In his last year of active duty, he was deputy chief and chief of the USAF-NATO Planning Liaison Group. He retired in July 1969, one month after being promoted to Regular Air Force lieutenant colonel.

In his first year of retirement, he was a magazine columnist. From 1970 to 1974, he was a real estate salesman and broker. He ran for Dade Metro commissioner in 1972 and lost in a run-off.

In 1974-1975, he was involved in agricultural-timber development on the Atlantic coast of Costa Rica.

Since 1975, he has been developing a farm in Glades County near Boar Hammock, and working on a book critical of U.S. foreign and defense policies, and proposing alternatives.

He served on the Dade County Citizens Land Use Planning Board and Health Planning Council in 1973. In 1978, he was elected without opposition to the Glades Soil and Water Conservation District. In 1979, he was elected alternate member of the Glades Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation District. He has also been appointed to the Glades County Industry Authority.

He has been married since 1949 and has three sons, all now independently established. He jogs three miles most days, and has a working level knowledge of Spanish.

One of the main planks in his platform is criticism of the current course of American foreign policy.

"It might seem unusual that this effort to halt or reverse the trend toward expansion of what history will view as an American empire of high cost and - except for NATO - little usefulness, should come from a man who served as Air Force officer and commander of moderate income. Perhaps it is. On the other hand, it is perhaps the career experience which has helped me to view events calmly, and the moderate income - some $30,000 annually, with something more than $150,000 equity in our farm - which leave me free to speak out forcefully without fear of poverty, or of jeopardizing financial interests. Perhaps also, the awareness that I come from an old American family and have had two brothers die in the uniform of their country, leaves me free to define America as I think it can and should be," he said.

"My candidacy is not based on heavy funding. I will pay for my filing fee, very selected mailings, and travel; and take pot luck from then on," he said.

"In brief, there are no international threats or problems in the world today that in anyway justify the neglect of our economy, our society and our democracy, inherent in the spurning of détente, a new arms race, rhetoric that could lead to global war, new alliances with unstable dictatorships," he said. "We must recognize that for the future as in the past, the strength of America lies in its industrial capabilities, its capacity for technological innovation, and most of all, on a free, dynamic and united society."

He calls for a full-scale Congressional review, debate and re-definition of U.S. national foreign and defense policies. He would oppose increased foreign involvement and any significant increase in military spending to maintain and support foreign policy.

He supports controlled immigration to the U.S. ("a large majority of the world's four million plus population would start for America tomorrow; we were mad enough to permit it"), respect and strict enforcement of laws ("to maintain respect for the law it is necessary that laws held in massive disregard by the public, such as those on marijuana, must be enforced or repealed. The law on immigration must be enforced"), and a tightly administered welfare system based on the California model so that the taxpayer does not feel that his money is being wasted.

He calls it idiotic to pay Americans not to work and suggests that a modern equivalent of the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps be started to increase employment.

He sees inflation as a danger to the country and says that productivity must be increased, a stable supply of energy insured, and the threat of war with its social and economic costs be reduced.

Reduction of military forces would help control inflation, balance the budget and permit spending more money or allow tax credits for essential priorities, he says.

The essential priorities are energy independence, jobs for Americans, and investment tax credits, he says.

As part of his energy remedy, he says that "We must divest Big Oil of all aspects of monopoly, to include the retail outlets that are being used to destroy the independent gas retailer."

He strongly supports agricultural and environmental conservation legislation, but opposes subsidies for tobacco. He supports aid for the development of rural areas in general.

"The problems of America are real, but they are not foreign, except that in playing power politics abroad, our government has forgotten its first responsibility to the American citizen," he said.

Refugee costs, SR 15, zoo occupy board

WEST PALM BEACH — County Commissioners are expected to take action June 24 on a request from Dreher Park Zoo for another $20,000 to underwrite operating costs.

Commissioner Bill Bailey, noting that the county has already contributed $60,000 to the zoo this year, has suggested the Zoological Society seek additional funds from municipalities.

At the June 10 meeting of the commission, a discussion led by Commissioner Norman Gregory, reviewed $78,520 costs incurred May 2-10 to aid Cuban refugees at the order of Florida Governor Bob Graham.

Administrator John Sansbury and Richard Ellington explained, after audience criticism, that the governor's directive was carried out under state law and said the crisis arose too quickly to notify all commissioners.

Vice Chairman Frank Foster had been alerted and staff members, working with Civil Defense and the sheriff's department, set up temporary holding facilities for the Cubans at the South Florida Fairgrounds.

From the audience, Gary Goldstein, an announced commission candidate, criticized payment of overtime, especially for Sansbury, but Ellington informed the board it was a legal move. Sansbury said the county is expecting reimbursement for costs from state and federal sources.

Commissioners also:

- Received and filed a status report from engineering which stated the Florida Department of Transportation (DOT) has completed the cutting of Australian pines on Sr 15 between Belle Glade and Pahokee and is starting to cut trees along Sr 700, Connors Highway.

During discussion, Bailey reiterated the extremely poor conditions of Connors Highway and suggested it should be closed if repaving funds can't be found at federal, state or local levels.

- Agreed to look into the possibility of acquiring approximately 80 acres between State Road 7 and Robin Road, just north of the Fairgrounds off Southern Boulevard as the site for a Southeast Florida Farmers Market.

Farm storage loan amount increased

The amount a farmer may borrow under the farm storage facility loan program has been increased from $50,000 to $100,000.

Under this program, loans are offered by the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to help farmers buy, build or remodel on-farm storage facilities and to obtain needed drying and handling equipment.

The maximum loan is 85 percent of the cost of the structures and equipment.

Under the new maximum, the aggregate outstanding loan balance maximum is also increased to $100,000. A minimum down payment of 15 percent of the cost must be paid in cash by the farmer before the loan is disbursed.

Loan repayment terms allow for a maximum of seven equal annual installments over a period of eight years. Prepayment may be made at any time without penalty.

Farmers must apply for loans at their county ASCS office within 30 days of the time the items to be financed are delivered to the farm. The higher loan amounts are available on applications filed beginning May 13.

No change is being made in the current method of determining storage needs or in the loan levels requiring agricultural stabilization state committee approval or real estate liens.

Farmers have built approximately 4.2 billion bushels of storage under the farm storage facility loan program since the program began in 1949. About 43 percent of this construction has occurred since April 1977.

Bill Bailey to speak

Footdragging... On State Road 80

It appears that the State Department of Transportation is tiring of corresponding with Hendry County Commissioners over the status of State Road 80.

Commissioners have been regularly writing DOT offices in Bartow and Tallahassee, trying to speed the resurfacing of SR 80 west of LaBelle to the Lee County line.

Despite continued local interest in the project, SR 80 - one of the worst roads in the state - has not managed to make the DOT's top 20 priority list.

On the DOT's own scale of 0-100, SR 80 west of LaBelle scores from 31 to 35. A score of 70 is considered passing.

The DOT says that roads in other parts of the district - which also includes Charlotte, DeSoto, Hardee, Hernando, Hillsborough, Lee, Pinellas, Polk, Sarasota, and Glades Counties - scored "over on the scale and are in worse need of repair."

The longest stretch of road in the top 20 is 2.1 miles. An estimated 9.2 miles of SR 80 is in need of repair.

In a June 4 letter to Hendry County, William N. Rose, secretary of transportation, urged county officials to set up a meeting with the district office in Bartow to discuss the matter in detail.

"I regret our current manpower limitations do not permit continuous and repetitive research for you," he wrote.

SR 80 is more than a mere alleyway between Clewiston and LaBelle. It is an important link between two of the fastest growing cities in the United States: West Palm Beach and Fort Myers.

In the event of man-made or natural disaster, there are indications that many coast residents would seek refuge in the Lake Okeechobee area.

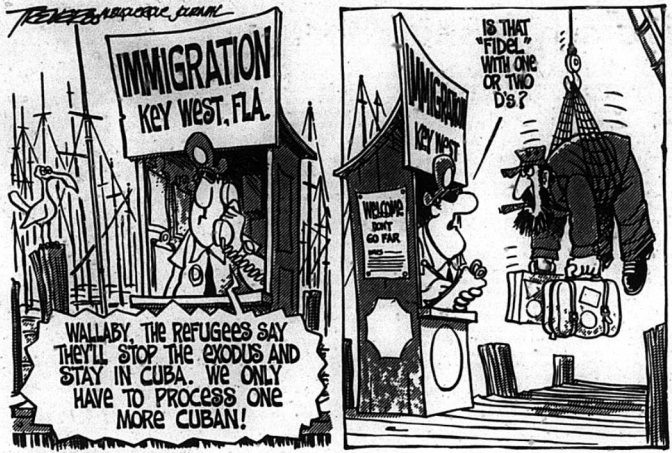

Most parts of the state have nearby Interstate road systems to help alleviate their road problems. Southwest Florida has been curiously neglected in this regard. This neglect makes the availability of well maintained state roads even more important.

The ideal solution to the problem would be to four-lane SR 80 from Fort Myers to the intersection of U.S. 27 and to four-lane 441 into West Beach. This probably won't happen soon.

Hendry Commissioners, who face "current manpower limitations" similar to those experienced by DOT Secretary Rose, will continue to press for the necessary repairs.

If you are interested in helping repair SR 80, why not drop Secretary Rose a letter and let him know how you feel? His address is William N. Rose, secretary, Department of Transportation, Haydon Burns Building, 605 Swanee Street, Tallahassee, FL 32301.

Distortions alleged

Editor: RE: WINK's news coverage on Hendry County's migrant housing, aired June 12, 1980, concerning many code violations found to exist in twenty-four housing units owned and operated by one landlord, Gentlemen.

In the segment regarding the interview with Commissioner Don Davis, WINK reporters told him that the Building Department was told to "back off." Nothing could be further from the truth. In fact, Commissioner Davis instructed the Building Department to take whatever action necessary to rectify the problems and the Commissioners, would back the Building Department 100 percent. WINK reporters were made aware of this by the Building Department before they interviewed Commissioner Davis.

Whenever possible the Commissioners would rather handle cases like this on a grass-roots level and in this case, solve the problem without having to go to court if at all possible. This situation was being handled effectively in this manner. WINK's unnecessary attempt to inject political undertones into the story could result in nothing more than friction in our local government.

In light of the way this story was handled by the news media, it makes one realize why government officials are apprehensive about cooperating with the news media as even subtle distortions of the facts can completely change the viewing public's outlook on how things really are.

After moving to LaBelle a few years ago from an urban atmosphere, I was impressed by the personal attention and good done by the local government as far as serving the people on an individual and personal level.

The citizens of this county as a whole, are happy with the way their politicians handle their affairs. We wish to maintain this small-town atmosphere as long as possible.

Sincerely,
Frank D. Johnston

Questions on accidents

Editor: On June 7, 1980, at approximately 2:30 a.m., my son and two male companions were involved in a traffic accident on highway 78 in Glades County. Realizing that there was not much traffic at this hour of the morning, he ran two miles to the nearest telephone booth and called the Glades County Sheriff's Department. He reported the accident and was informed it would be "a while" he was informed that a Florida Highway Patrol Trooper would have to be called out to investigate the accident. He was not questioned as to the seriousness of the accident, or if there was need of an ambulance. Fortunately no one was seriously injured.

The question is, why with a Glades County Deputy being on duty 24 hours a day, can't he go to the scene of an accident, pending the arrival of a highway Patrol Trooper. The Florida Highway Patrol does not have a trooper on duty from 12:00 a.m. until 6:00 a.m. in the morning. Fortunately, Trooper Henderson, who had to be called out, was able to respond to the call in a matter of minutes.

Are our Glades County Deputies not allowed to work traffic accidents, do they pick and choose which accidents to work, or do they just not choose to work them at all?

Cuban freedom is hope

Dear Sir: I am writing to you in reference to two articles which appeared in THE HERALD-OBSERVER. "Reader Appalled By Anti-Refugee Demonstrations" and "Wonderous Welcome." I wish to express my utmost appreciation for the beautiful and meaningful works which were expressed and published in reference to the homeless Cuban Political Exiles who were forced to abandon their native land due to the anti-humanitarian actions in Cuba. Your actions should be imitated because they are so humane.

The Castro Communist government is a huge mistake to have in our Americas! I hope that in the near future my native land of Cuba will be liberated from the monstrosity of Castro and communism so that these people who are now homeless will have freedom once more and live in peace in their homeland.

Sincerely,

Reagan's challenge

Unlike the bitterly divided Democrats, the Republicans need toward their convention next month in Detroit under 38 electoral votes, winning the nomination Ronald Reagan led few wounds, and besides, his differences with Bush were more of style than of substance. Instead of exacerbating party differences, as some feared, Reagan has been seen as a unifying force. Now he is intensifying this cooperative effort with non-Reaganites, most notably former President Gerald Ford, the titular head of the party.

Reagan's immediate challenge is to translate his primary campaign achievement into a victorious national coalition. It is one thing to galvanize support and votes (this a party of increasingly conservative coloration. It is something else - considering that less than 80 percent of U.S. voters are registered Republicans - to win sufficient strength from the American people to unseat an incumbent president.

Reagan's great task, then, is to broaden his appeal. Inasmuch as public appeal begins with confidence, Reagan is summoned now to provide that confidence. And much confidence hinges on his vice presidential nominee. Reagan's age has created extraordinary interest in his choice of a running mate. To the degree the GOP vice presidential nominee complements Reagan in his ability and experience to be president of the United States, to that degree will Reagan gain public confidence and broaden his own appeal. And to the extent that presidential qualities are lacking in a running mate, to that degree will the Reagan presidential bid be jeopardized.

Perhaps the next most pressing public concern about Reagan is his lack of focus on foreign affairs, about which Reagan has gained confidence and broadened his own appeal. And to the extent that presidential qualities are lacking in a running mate, to that degree will the Reagan presidential bid be jeopardized.

Lack of experience makes Reagan particularly vulnerable on international issues. The American people, not to say U.S. allies, would be reassured, therefore, if he would surround himself with respected foreign policy advisers. It is important to know to whom he is listening. Moreover, he should not long delay spelling out comprehensive foreign policy positions. The time, in short, has come for Reagan to define his alternatives to the Carter administration's incoherent foreign policy in more than one card cliché.

And there are serious domestic problems, primarily in the economic sector, that must be intelligently addressed in terms more precise than simply advocating tax cuts.

Unless Reagan converts public doubt about his leadership into public confidence, as he fortunately has every chance of doing, the majority of Americans voting in November could conclude that incompetent incumbents are lesser evils than incompetent newcomers with neither experience nor alternatives.

Must history repeat itself?

Forty years ago this month, France collapsed under the hammer blows of the German blitzkrieg. What now seems hardly more than a footnote to history was, in fact, a cataclysm that stunned the world.

And the eerie parallels between that day and this - between the France of 1940 and the Atlantic Alliance of 1980 - repeat themselves in one form or another to every American, and indeed all of the Free World.

The resolute "spirit of Verdun" that had saved France in 1917 withered between the wars. By the mid-1930s, huge rallies demanding peace and disarmament were commonplace in Paris even as Nazi Germany rearmament with vengeance.

The traditional divisions between the political left and right in France became unbridgeable. Bitter factionalism ensured an ineffectual leadership.

The French army, considered by many at the time to be the best in the world, nevertheless lost its faith in the static defenses of the Maginot Line and the outmoded tactics of World War I. While Hitler dreamed the unthinkable, France crawled into its shell, complacent and corrupt.

France's allies were hardly more prescient. Neville Chamberlain's Britain took refuge in appeasement and scuffed at calls for a larger defense budget. Belgium sought salvation in an ostrich-like neutrality. And the Dutch proposed to defend themselves with weapons a generation out of date.

Few in the West bothered to read Hitler's prophetic Mein Kampf. Those who did generally dismissed it as the rantings of a madman, or as the ramblings of a man whose ambitions were no greater than those of every American, and indeed all of the Free World.

September 1939 forced France and Britain into the war. Even then, the Western allies did little more than garrison their borders while hoping for some painless way to avoid the firestorm their own timidity had helped to fuel.

When the storm broke, it carried everything before it. Hitler's panzer divisions struck France and the Low Countries on May 10, 1940. Ten days later, German armor reached the Channel Coast, splitting the allied armies and dooming France. Paris was declared an open city on June 13. On the 17th, the French government sued for peace. Holland and Belgium had been crushed and only a heroic evacuation saved the British army from destruction at Dunkirk.

The world trembled before the specter of a new Genghis Khan.

Today, NATO faces military odds three times worse than those confronting the Western allies in that calamitous spring four decades ago. The foolish clamor for disarmament and appeasement can still be heard in Western Europe and here at home. And statesmen and politicians are as loathe to perceive the ambitions of a massively armed Soviet Union as were their counterparts blind to the dreams of Hitler.

Must history repeat? And if it does, and Americans face their own Dunkirk, who could then rescue us?

By Congressman Skip Batulis
WASHINGTON - The worst way in the world to find solutions to a particular problem is to hold a White House Conference on the problem.

That seems to be the lesson from the first regional conference of the White House Conference on Families, held recently in Baltimore.

Everyone agrees things are going for the family, mainly because of the high cost of living, drug and alcohol abuse and the decline of moral standards. Yet the suggestions which emanated from the Baltimore conference, the first of three to be held across the nation, do anything but address those issues.

Instead of efforts to curb federal spending and thus reduce inflation, the conference called for massive new federal programs. Instead of deploring the decline in moral standards, the conference called for support for gay families.

But the results come as no real surprise to those who have watched this silliness since its inception.

After all, if you're truly concerned about the problems facing families today, why appoint someone like Richard J. Neuhaus, Associate Pastor of Trinity Church in New York City, to the national advisory committee?

Instead of deploring the decline in moral standards, Neuhaus thinks we should surrender to the so-called new morality. "Let me hasten to say here that I am in sympathy with the effort to remove a number of items from the criminal code," he wrote in a 1973 article.

"I believe that marijuana should be decriminalized. I believe that any kind of private sexual behavior between or among consenting adults is none of the state's business (except possibly in the case of a masochist who desires the supreme ecstasy of being murdered.) I suggest that, incredibly limited as it is, almost anything should be permitted in plays and movies (like torture scenes - in a play requiring the actual breaking of bones. I think we should explore the relative merits of carefully controlled legislation of prostitution in restricted areas," wrote Pastor Neuhaus.

Further, he said, "I'm not sure I would resist a controlled experiment with legal heroin maintenance."

Neuhaus is not the only example of such far-out thinking - thinking which flies in the face of most Americans - on the advisory committee.

But that's to be expected. After all, any conference on the family which decides it wants input from the National Gay Task Force has got to be looking at things from a far different perspective than you and I.

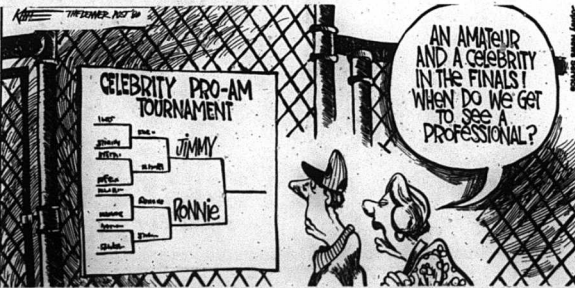

That's why the more traditional delegates to the Baltimore conference walked out in protest. They wanted to limit the discussion to the traditional family unit, defined as a group of people related by blood, marriage or adoption.

The White House Conference organizers, however, want to use a much broader definition: "A family is a unit of two or more persons who share resources, share responsibilities for the decisions, share values and have a commitment to one another over time."

That can be a man and woman just living together - or two men or two women living together - a far cry from what most Americans think of when you say family.

Unfortunately, all this won't end with the three regional conferences. After the remaining conferences in Minneapolis and Los Angeles are held, a national task force will be set up to spell out a so-called program for the family.

Once this is done, horrors of horrors, there will be an effort to implement those recommendations. None of which bodes well for the future!

Teleshopping ahead says university researcher

Computers could revolutionize food shopping by the year 2,000, when they are expected to be found in many American homes right along with the television set.

Food market researcher Bob Degner says electronics has already changed food shopping by bringing scanners to checkout lines, but the biggest change are yet to come. Degner, who is with the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS), says several firms are now experimenting with "teleshopping."

A teleshopping episode might go as follows: The shopper, using a computer terminal connected to the cable channel of a television set, calls up the list of the previous week's purchases. The television screen flashes the price, size and name of the items ordered.

The shopper alters the list, adding some items and deleting others. In doubt about the kinds of frozen entrees available, the shopper enters "frozen entrees" and the screen fills with a new list called up from the computer's memory of the more than 12,000 grocery items likely to be in stock.

When the order is complete, the shopper relays it to a nearby store, where it is received and processed. The items could be picked up at the store at a scheduled time or delivered to the shopper's home.

"We've got the technological know-how to eliminate shopping trips," Degner says. With standardized products, shopping in person could become rare.

Teleshopping could give consumers fast and convenient access to thousands of grocery and drugstore items.

So long as sight, feel and smell are not important when ordering the merchandise, it would be a candidate for the teleshopper.

Since even such foods as produce and meats are ranked in quality according to USDA grades, they could possibly be ordered via television says Degner. He says the trend toward standardization of food quality will continue, making it easier for people to buy sight unseen.

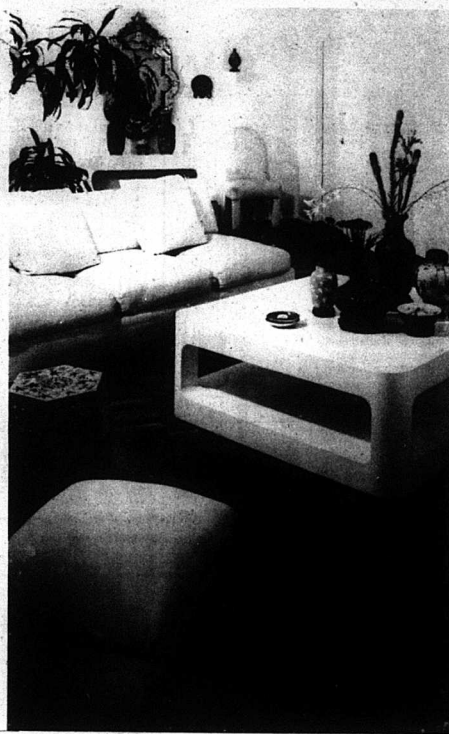

Computers may also have some unpleasant effects on consumers, Degner says. For instance, they could enable stores to bill for a purchase instantly, through automatic access to the shopper's checking account.

Packaging and advertising would change in response to teleshopping too. People will be less prone to try different brands or buy impulse items because they cannot see and touch the items, Degner says. Packaging will become less important as an advertising vehicle and new products will require a lot more initial advertising.

While in-home computers for teleshopping are at least a decade away for most households, computers in grocery stores are here now. Electronic scanners are being added to about 100 stores a month, according to a market researcher at A.C. Nielsen Co.

Degner says the expensive machines (about $10,000 apiece) help supermarkets run more efficiently. From the consumer's viewpoint, faster checkout lines are the most apparent sign of efficiency. Scanners, which read the striped Universal Product Codes appearing on most products, including produce and meats, make lines move up to 25 percent faster, Degner says.

For the grocer, scanners help by keeping an inventory of every item sold each day. The grocer can cater to his customer's tastes and use his shelf space more wisely by discontinuing slow sellers and increasing orders of popular items. Sales by time of day can also be readily determined allowing grocers to schedule labor more efficiently.

You must lose a fly to catch a trout.

Summer fishermen are special breed: waders

By Lorne Radcot

With the level of Lake Okechobee fractionally over the 16' mark it is the time of year that a particular breed of fisherman really looks forward to. It is the time of the Wader. Research indicates that all around the Lake there are areas where the depth of the water is from 2 1/2 to 5 feet. This is excellent wading water. Who wades? The canoeist, the bait caster, the spinning and spincaster and the fly rodder. Why waders? When fishing the shallow waters Waders have a definite advantage over the man in the boat (though you are going to have to use a boat to get to the waters of your choice) for the simple reason that your silhouette is so much lower and less likely to spook your quarry. Another good reason is that you have far greater mobility thus allowing you to literally sneak up on a fish in order to present your lure or bait just the way you want to. Or just from a fishes point of view just the way it wants it!

In our warm waters, especially during the summer months, waders are not absolutely necessary though there are times when working from one spot to another you encounter heavy underwater growth that can put a few welts on you.

Over the years most waders I have seen simply wear sneakers and shorts. A cap or hat is almost a must. It not only shades your eyes somewhat from the glare but your head will be a lot cooler and the sun is not as likely to cause stroke problems. Another item of equipment, optional, is a good pair of polarized fishing glasses, prescription, if necessary. They make wading a whole new ballgame. In addition they open up a whole new underwater world to you in that you not only can see where you are placing your feet but watching the marine life itself can be fascinating. It is also a good idea to take along a sunscreen type tanning lotion (there are many, excellent ones available) and apply the lotion to exposed parts of the anatomy. Those that tend to "burn" easily should always use it. Fishing vests are popular for this type fishing. They can weigh as little as a few ounces and will hold just about everything you need. Also they are relatively inexpensive though I have seen a few models over the years that look like they were designed by Pierre Cardin or some such.

Most of the bass you will encounter are those known as "yearlings" or "school" bass. They will be anywhere from about 2 to 3 pounds or better. Even in the shallow waters an occasional "Lunker" of 5 pounds or more will be taken. When small bait fish move into the clear shallows and are located by a school of foraging bass the action can make your eyes pop. At times like these a strike with a wild abandon that you don't usually encounter in other types of bass fishing. The action will stay "hot" until either the bass have so spread the baitfish they are difficult to locate or the fisherman, in his enthusiasm, inadvertently gets too close and spooks them. There are occasions, however, when the bass pays little or no attention to anything but what they are doing and the fisherman facing this situation is fortunate indeed.

With the possibility of many fish being taken in one outing it stands to reason that you will have a lot of releases. Take great care and treat each fish before release. It is a sad sight to see a fisherman literally tear an unwanted fish off the hook and fling it away. And why? The fish certainly gave the fisherman a thrill and to treat a release in this manner will, sooner or later, kill the fish. This complete lack of consideration is the saddest thing I have seen in the sport of fishing and in retrospect I would think the perpetrator of such an act doesn't feel too good about it either. Don't let your enthusiasm make a slob out of you.

For a number of reasons to be dealt with later putting the fish you have elected to keep on a stringer is not always the best idea. The fish on a stringer tends to the fish swimming between your legs (perhaps to seek the shade afforded) and can cause all kinds of problems. And if they swim around both legs and you take the wrong step at the right time you are generally in for a dunking. For those waders in un-cumbered progress as you work from cover to cover and also makes for tastier eating. And don't think these "yearlings" aren't tasty.

Since bass are the most sought after fish let us deal with the various types of tackle used in their pursuit by summer waders. For the spinning or spincaster enthusiast this is the time when, generally speaking, lighter lines can be used. The lighter line the more enjoyable casting can be. With the use of lighter lines much smaller lures are the order of the day.

Tackle manufacturers realizing this have come up with a formidable array of miniatures resembling just about everything that swims, and they are exceedingly lifelike in appearance. The small spinner baits also are extremely popular. While visiting marinas and fish camps around the Lake I found such an assortment of these lures that it can boggle one's mind. More to the point. They really produce. A bass with one of these in his mouth is going to put up a much better scrap than one with his face full of a large plug. So now the Ultra Light man truly comes into his own. A two-pound bass is certainly not considered a trophy but on light tackle and 4 or 6 lb. line you can bet you are not going to simply "reel" him in once he is hooked. The opportunity to "play" a fish is more predominant than with heavy tackle and is, it follows, much more enjoyable. There is a trend among bait casters to take advantage of this in summer.

They go to lighter whippier rods, lighter lines (6 and 8 lb.) and the miniature lures. This combination makes for more accurate "spot" casting and is a delight to handle. When school bass are not actively feeding it means that you still have to work out your chosen area with care and miss not the slightest bit of cover. All this means that you are going to, occasionally, get into one that may be too hot to handle but if you can handle it you will experience a great satisfaction. If you can't handle it then you will probably end up with a broken line. A word on this. Since most of this type fishing is in weeding cover with open pockets, it stands to reason that a certain amount of abrasion to the line is going to take place. For goodness sake learn to break off 2 or 3 feet during the span of your fishing. This area is where most wear and tear takes place and though you may start out with 6 lb. line a half hour casting and retrieving through weedy water will most assuredly cause fraying. When this happens you may be fishing with 2 lb. line and that's asking for trouble.

This is the time, too, when the flyrod addict comes into his own. Though large flies are taken more often than you think by this method (12 lbs. is the Lake record) it is the "schoolies" you mostly get. A Popping Bug cast into a feeding school can be dynamite. The fish seem to be trying to destroy the offering and once hooked will not let their dance almost immediately. At other times the strike consists of a quiet "slurp" with very little sound. The bug simply disappears therefore it is absolutely essential to carefully observe the bug at all times. To miss seeing this type strike is, often, to miss reacting quickly enough to strike back.

and set the hook. Sometimes it happens that the fish has so deeply inhaled the bug that the hook point is in a very sensitive part of its mouth and will cause great bleeding. You are better off to add this one to your creel as the chances of its survival are pretty remote.

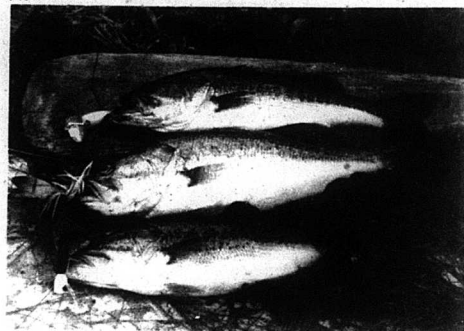

Another lure that I have purposely waited until now to mention is the plastic worm. Have you ever noticed the numbers and variety of the 4-inch model carried by most marinas, fish camps and tackle shops? They are not there just for show. This particular size can be deadly in Summer fishing. It can be used on bait casting tackle as well as the Ultra Light Spin and Spincasting Tackle.

Those selling these little gems can tell you what the most popular colors are for a given area in most instances. There are so many situations that come where this is the only practical lure to use, particularly in heavy cover.

For those who perhaps feel that summer fishing is not good give it a second thought. There is a world of good fishing and good eating waiting in our Lake for those who apply themselves. With the cost of the dinner entree being what it is today, who knows, you might end up breaking even.

Next Week: Summer Panfish.

Blue gill, bass fishing hot

Information received from the Southeast, Southwest and West sides of the Lake indicate that bass fishing has been "hot". And the Bluegill are also the same bent.

From Larry Moore of Twin Palms, north of Moore Haven on State Rd. 78, comes word that the action has been fast at the mouth of Harney Pond Canal and they've known as a "Little Sarasota". As a matter of fact Tom Collins of Sarasota came in with a nice string of 7 1/2 lbs. from the latter location while I was talking to Larry. The Model A Bomber is the lure.

Limits of Bluegills are being taken on crickets and for the casters, Beetle Spins. Try the sand bar in three to four feet of water at the mouth of "Little Sarasota".

From the J-Mark Camp at Belle Glade, Mike Mark advises that a lot of Bass have succumbed to the "flipping" method. Spoons, and crank baits are also proving good bets.

While most of the fish are of the yearling variety there are exceptions such as Darrel Matheson and Holmes Farris of Belle Glade coming in with a catch that included one of eight pounds, two ounces, and one of eight pounds six ounces.

Bluegills continue very active and willing. Live crickets and beetle spins will get the job done and the Rim Canal to the West is the place to concentrate your efforts.

Dick Vance of Anglers Marina in Clewiston also indicates that the bass have been "hot". Johnson Spoon Combs (Yellow Skirt & Gold Spoon) fished across the surface are producing well and in less weedy areas the crank baits are getting their share of fish.

Limits of bluegill have been coming in. They are of excellent size and condition and are being caught on Live Crickets. Beetle Spins and live worms. Best areas to fish are the Rim Canal, Spoil Bank Islands and even the individual Pepper Grass

A game of checkers absorbs two youngsters taking part in the city's summer recreation activities at Airport Park.

A moment of decision appears to be taking place as friends on the sidelines watch. Was it a backflip he was contemplating or just that first-time fears of going into the water head first?

OUR APOLOGY is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Martin of Belle Glade incorrectly identified in last week's Herald-Observer article about the American Red Cross Vial of Life Program. At left is Mrs. Abby Zumpf who heads the program in the Glades area.

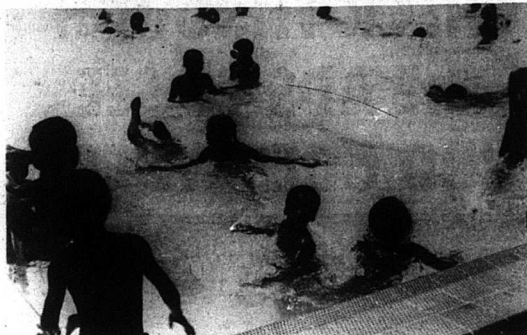

The newspaper recycling drive sponsored by the Boy Scouts of America seems to be doing much better these days with the addition of signs on the receptacle at the Community United Methodist Church. From my perch here at the newspaper office of the container, I have noticed a marked increase in the traffic flow.

We can only hope that local residents continue to save and deposit their old newspapers in the container to be used for recycling. The proceeds from the sales will go to benefit the Boy Scouts of America.

This Saturday is the first day of summer and soon the Florida summer heat will be an ongoing reality.

With the kids out of school for the summer, there will be screams of boredom if you don't think quick. In the continuing part of this column I will try to outline some of the activities offered for youths during the summer months.

The Belle Glade Recreation Department has a summer program that includes organized games, arts and crafts, tennis lessons and swimming lessons that will be given at the Lake Shore Pool. There is a charge for some of the activities.

The best place to be on a hot day is in the Lake Shore swimming pool, just one of the fun things going on in the Belle Glade summer recreation program.

An organized game with a frisbee is about to begin at the Airport Park site of the summer program. And there's room for plenty more to join in, according to Jane Williams, city recreation coordinator.

Hey Kids!

Come join the fun

BELLE GLADE — The city's summer vacation recreation program is underway and children can register for activities at any park.

At Lake Shore Park, the program activities are conducted from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1 until 4 p.m.

Summertime fun includes tennis lessons, arts and crafts, team sports and swimming lessons.

Tennis lessons are also being offered at Lyons Park Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until noon and 6 to 10 p.m.

Although Airport Park is not completely finished, a summer program is already in progress there also. During weekday mornings, team sports are held. From 1 until 4 p.m. it's arts and crafts time.

The city program is open to children of any age just by registering at one of the parks.

For additional information contact the Belle Glade recreation department or a program supervisor at one of the parks.

Afternoons are the time for arts and crafts at Airport Park.

The Belle Glade Municipal Library will be offering a summer reading program designed for children five to ten years old. Each Wednesday there's a story hour and arts and crafts session at 11 a.m. and movies are shown at 3 p.m. Fridays and 1 p.m. Saturdays.

Thursdays at 11 a.m. there will be a story hour and movie. On Thursdays the program moves to the Lake Shore Civic Center for stories and movies at 3 and 3:30 p.m. For more information you can contact the library.

The local churches also offer some summer activities with the inclusion of Vacation Bible School at many of the churches. On contacting the Belle Glade Alliance Church, we were told that their Vacation Bible School will begin July 28 and run thru August 1. It will be an evening school for ages three thru adult.

The Community United Methodist Church will be offering an evening youth week August 11 thru the 15 in conjunction with the Vacation Bible School. It will start at 7 p.m. and run till 9 p.m. Films and crafts will be offered.

The Apostolic Church will be sponsoring a week of youth camp during the week of August. It is offered to children age six and up. The activities will include baseball, volleyball and basketball. There is no charge.

I am sure we've missed quite a few activities that are being offered during the summer for our youth, so if you know of any others that you would like to have announced please let us know.

Many people that are looking for good shade trees for their landscapes are also in many cases looking for more than just shade. Multi-purpose use trees are much more desirable for landscaping purposes and if you can get beautiful flowers or even delicious fruit in addition to shade this is highly desirable.

One of the most common large exotic tropical fruit trees grown in the area also makes an excellent shade tree with few problems. The tree I am referring to is the mango, one of South Florida's most highly prized tropical fruits.

Native to Southeast Asia, mangos have been cultivated in Florida for many years and through diligent breeding and selection of superior seedlings Florida is recognized as having the finest varieties of mangos of any place in the world. Much of the commercially planted acreage in many foreign countries is wholly comprised of varieties of mangos developed here in Florida and taken back to these underdeveloped countries.

Commercial production of mangos is limited to extreme southern Florida with the bulk of the acreage being in Dade County. More important than its commercial usage, however, is its widespread acceptance as a shade tree for dooryard landscaping.

Mangos grow to be quite large trees, sometimes approaching 50 feet with an equal spread, and have lanceolate leaves six to 12 inches in length and two to three and a half inches in width. Thousands of yellowish cream color blossoms are produced on the ends of branches during the late winter and early spring. Only a small percentage of these flowers develop fruits which, according to the variety, may mature as early as June or as late as November.

The most commonly used mangos are ones that have brightly colored fruit, but this is not always a sign of the best type since many excellent varieties have fruit which show very little color when mature.

Mango fruits vary quite widely in size, shape and color and also the thickness of the seed is highly variable. Fruits are generally round with one single large seed in a woody husk and the flesh color ranges from almost white to deep orange-yellow.

Mangos are generally eaten fresh, juiced, used for preserves, jellies, chutney and ice cream. Mangos can be used for pickles, a sauce similar to apple sauce and many other uses.

Most landscape nurseries in southern Florida either sell mangos or can get them from wholesale nurseries so they should be too difficult to obtain trees for dooryard plantings.

People are always asking which is the best variety and this is not an easy question to answer. With more than 200 named varieties of mangos available and countless ones raised from seed, there exists an almost infinite number of flavors and colors of mango fruit. The best thing would be to sample mangos during the mango season and after selecting a type you really like try to locate that variety at a local nursery.

It is best to buy a grafted tree of a known variety so that you will be assured of getting a uniform fruit of known quality. Many people do raise trees from seed and seedlings will come into bearing at about the fifth or sixth year, however, mangos do not always come true to type and the seedling may be nothing like the parent.

Trees should be planted in sunny, well-drained locations and sufficient space should be allowed for mature growth unless pruning in later years is going to be practiced.

Typical citrus or fruit tree type fertilizers should be applied to the tree every six to eight weeks until it is up to bearing size. Thereafter three applications a year would be sufficient.

During the bloom period blossoms should be protected from fungus infection by regular spraying with fungicides such as Benlate, Dithane M-45 or Copper.

Trees need to be watered weekly until they are several years old. Thereafter watering may not be needed except during periods of drought.

Young trees should be protected from below freezing temperatures; however, mature trees can withstand temperatures in the mid 20's for brief periods and still recover.

FSU music camp has openings

TALLAHASSEE — Summer Music Camps at Florida State University offer young people, ages 14-17, an opportunity to study and perform under the direction of faculty members of the FSU School of Music.

Baton twirlers, drum majors and kids who play all kinds of musical instruments descend on the Tallahassee campus annually for practice, study and lots of fun.

There are still openings for many of the specialized training programs in July, including camps for baton twirlers and drum majors. Reservations also may be made in the following wind and percussion sessions: flute, double reed, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, horn, trombone, euphonium/tuba, percussion and the symphonic band.

For information and applications, write Music Camps, Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida, 32306 or telephone (904) 644-3507.

A grant of $1,979 will go to Florida Atlantic University.

Announcement of the grants was made by Florida Secretary of State George Firestone who said the funds are provided by the US Department of Education.

Keeping the Faith

BY THE REV. JOE ED MCGAHEY
Community United Methodist Church

"What is that in your hand?" Exodus 4:2 NASB.

This coming October I plan to go camping in the Sinai, with 15 other men, some of them fellow ministers. It will not only be a sightseeing experience, but even more, a spiritual experience.

One of the things we will be doing, is to climb Mt. Sinai, (at Mt. Horeb, the same mountain goes by both names in the Bible). Today there is a 1400-year-old monastery on the side of this great mountain. It was built on the traditional sight of Moses burning bush experience.

You remember this experience is described for us in Exodus 3 and 4. There because of an unusual sight, a bush burning but not being consumed, Moses turned aside. As he did, God spoke to him out of the bush, asking him to remove his shoes, because he was on holy ground. God's Presence was there.

Thus, you will remember, that was the beginning of a long conversation between God and Moses. Moses at the time was 80 years old and God was asking him to go back to Egypt, bring the Children of Israel out of Egypt and into the Promised Land. Moses believed that God had a good idea in rescuing the Jewish people out of Egypt, but the wrong person to do the job.

During the conversation God ask Moses what he has in his hand. Moses was carrying a shepherd's staff, so Moses answer was simply "A staff." Then God said, "Throw it on the ground." When Moses did God said, the staff became a snake, which Moses fled from.

At the command of God, Moses picked up the snake by the tail and again Moses had his staff back. Moses was soon convinced that he was the man for the job.

Moses was the man not because he was so extraordinary but because God had called him to the job and enabled him to do that which he had been called to do.

That is the way God is. He always calls us to a task that is bigger than we are. He always gives us a job that is too big to accomplish in our own strength and wisdom. Therefore, the only way we can carry out our God-given assignment is to be dependent on Him. This, first of all, means we have to believe in Him. I do not mean by this, mere mental assent to the fact that He is. We must believe that He is who His Word (the Bible) says He is. That He is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. That He is the "same yesterday, today, and forever." (Hebrews 13:8) This means that what God did through Moses, Joshua, Peter or Paul, that He can and will do through us today. The key is up to us.

Believing in and trusting in God involves our total dependence upon Him. This means more than coming to know the will of God for our lives, it means depending on Him to work His will out in us. It is not just a matter of living a good clean life, it is doing what God wants us to do with our lives. It is allowing God to work through us to accomplish His work.

God has blessed each of us with certain talents and abilities, but it is up to us to use them in the way that brings glory to God. Like the staff that was in the hand of Moses on Mt. Sinai, when ordinary abilities are entrusted to God, He will make them extraordinary and by doing so equip us to do that which He calls us to do.

At 89 pianist Arthur Rubinstein couldn't see the keys on the piano or the notes on the page, but was able to play brilliantly from memory.

It was a great experience both ways," Rev. Atkins says. "Our being there expressed a certain amount of love to the Koreans."

Both say the revival ministry was more effective than even a Billy Graham crusade because it reached people in their homes, at work and in the streets.

Koreans do not visit one another's homes unless they are invited," explained Mr. Atkins. "After being with us the Korean church people feel they can now go house-to-house."

More details about their missionary trip will be given Sunday night at 7:30 at the First Baptist Church when Rev. Atkins will show slides and share the experiences with church members.

In 1873, St. Louis established the first public kindergarten in the United States.

A Friend At Headquarters

Law and Order. Lately we've been making those words sound grim. Because we've all been painfully aware of moral deterioration in our society.

Actually Law is a friendly word. It connotes a sense of community in which each is willing to adapt his behavior to the common good of all.

And Order is a happy word. It represents millions of responsible people enjoying that common good.

Respect for Law and the desire for Order must be gained in childhood. Having a 'friend at headquarters' helps.

But the heart of the matter is our early discovery of God. His love for us... His expectations of us... the hopes and promises that give life its highest meaning.

Headquarters for moral and spiritual growth is the Church, with its program of religious education. There can be found our most enriching friendships.

A KOREAN HOTEL ROOM presents a view of two cultures. There's a television set in the corner but no bed to sleep on and no chairs to sit on.

Two local churchmen tell about Korean trip

By AILSA DEWING

Two weeks in South Korea for Christ provides a lifetime of memories.

And for the Rev. Robert Atkins and George Goforth, pastor and layman, respectively, of Belle Glade First Baptist Church, it has provided "tremendous blessings," they say.

The love that was extended from people materially poor by U.S. standards and the gratitude expressed for their missionary work has imbued them with a need to do it at home.

"People here don't realize the value of Christianity," said Rev. Atkins. "Materialism is such a detriment to our country."

Most of the South Koreans the men talked with had no religion at all, they report. Some were Buddhist, but none were seeking for a faith. And as members of a 108-member delegation of Baptist ministers, laypeople and musicians, they succeeded in reaching 13,000 converts to Christianity during the two-week crusade and revival ministry.

But the trip was not without its culture shocks, too. Sitting and sleeping on the floor and learning to remember to take their shoes off before entering homes were new experiences as was learning to eat with chopsticks.

And you don't ask what you're eating," said Goforth, relieved that he was not among those offered raw squid.

A 45 "Chosen hamburger" was dry and tough. "And we just cooked it was beef," Dogmet is a staple among the poor, they learned.

The two men have but recently returned from Korea where they participated in a revival ministry conducted by the Korean and Florida Baptist Conventions in association with the Baptist Foreign Missions Board.

Original plans would have had them arriving in the city of Kwangju just as the rioting in the streets began. A change of plans took them instead to the cities of Pusan and Taejon. Nevertheless, a city-wide crusade scheduled in Taejon was cancelled for fear of so many people congregating at one time.

As a result, the most action they saw was when their plan flew past the erupting volcano of Mt. St. Helens. And most of the travelers were more concerned about the upheaval in Miami than in Kwangju, they said.

Both men were overwhelmed by the receptiveness of the South Korean people to receiving the Christian gospel.

"It was not unusual," Goforth relates, "for banks and industries to shut down when our people visited and for the employers to call all the workers together to listen."

While witnessing in parks or on streets, Rev. Atkins found that when two people stopped to listen, he would soon have a crowd of listeners.

"Of course," he laughs, "We had three 'freaks': a blonde woman, a six-foot tall man and a Black."

The happiness of the people in spite of living in slums, faced the constant threat of invasion and the dangers of an unstable government deeply impressed the two Belle Glade visitors, leading Rev. Atkins to make the comment that materialism is a detriment to Americans.

Walking hand in hand was another Korean custom the men had to adapt to in a country where men hold hands as a gesture of friendship.

"It was a great experience both ways," Rev. Atkins says. "Our being there expressed a certain amount of love to the Koreans."

Both say the revival ministry was more effective than even a Billy Graham crusade because it reached people in their homes, at work and in the streets.

Koreans do not visit one another's homes unless they are invited," explained Mr. Atkins. "After being with us the Korean church people feel they can now go house-to-house."

More details about their missionary trip will be given Sunday night at 7:30 at the First Baptist Church when Rev. Atkins will show slides and share the experiences with church members.

Palm Harbor Introducing . . . The Watt Wise Mobile Home

"The Mobile Home Approved by FPI"

"We Saved!"

"Our monthly electric bill is just $40.92 for our 2 bedroom 1 1/2 bath all electric Palm Harbor home. As a matter of fact, our electric bill averages about as much as our Palm Harbor home as that of many of our neighbors with the same size home."

Mr. & Mrs. Charles Hoffman

Average monthly electric cost for 1440 sq. ft., 2br, 1 1/2 bath mobile home, with all electric River Electric Co-op Service area.

Palm Harbor is the first mobile home manufacturer to receive the "Energy Saver Program Award" from Florida Power and Light. The award is given to the "Energy Savings Standards Award" from Florida Power & Light. What this means to you is exactly what the words say - savings! This home is designed and constructed to provide the maximum energy efficiency, strength, space and comfort. And all at a very affordable price. Beneath the beauty of every Palm Harbor home is their exclusive Thermal/Solar/Shield construction. Every Palm Harbor home has Ford SunGlas[®] which blocks 24% of the sun's heat so less solar energy enters your home. That means your air conditioner works less in the summer, and you'll probably use less electricity year around. Since SunGlas[®] blocks ultraviolet rays, it protects your carpets, draperies and furniture from premature fading. The Palm Harbor ceiling construction has an effectiveness rating of R-30, and the same Thermal Sheathing material used in energy efficient site-built homes is used under all of the aluminum siding providing insulation and a sound barrier. And along with all the energy saving features - the Palm Harbor is a beautiful home that is available in a variety of styles geared to individual lifestyles.

What can be done about a cat gone astray? Give him a place to come home to. Animal shelters nationwide will be helping homeless cats get back on their paws and into the arms of new owners during June, the sixth annual Adopt-A-Cat Month. Morris the Cat, the alley cat who leaped to fame, stands as the symbol of the campaign, which is sponsored by 9-Lives Cat Food for The American Humane Association and its 2000 affiliated shelters. Since spring is the peak feline breeding season, shelters have thousands of kittens and cats in need of homes. All participating shelters are offering a free adoption kit, compliments of Morris and 9-Lives, to anyone who adopts a feline during June. Featured is Morris' book of cat care, an adoption certificate and free cat food coupons.

Spanish Olive Oil Enhances These ... Party "Appetizers", Or Mealtime "Openers"

Flavor is all-important when making party-time "appetizers" or unusual, before-meal tidbits. Spanish Olive Oil is the secret of successful chefs for that special flair of a real taste treat.

CHICKEN BITES
2 whole chicken breasts, split, boned and skinned
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1/2 cup Spanish olive oil
Cut chicken into about 35 bite-size pieces. Mix egg, salt, pepper. Dip chicken pieces into egg mixture. Coat with crumbs. Heat olive oil in large skillet, saute chicken until browned on both sides. Turn immediately on wooden picks. Makes 35 appetizers.

CHICKEN LIVERS EN BROCHETTE
1 pound chicken livers
1/2 cup Castella brandy
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon basil
1/2 cup Spanish olive oil
1 green pepper cut into 1-inch pieces
Combine all ingredients; marinate at least one hour. Thread onto skewers alternating livers with green peppers. Broil about 10 minutes until livers are cooked, turning once. Serve hot. Makes 8 servings.

SHRIMP TOAST
1/2 cup pound cooked shrimp
1 water chestnut, finely chopped
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup Spanish sherry
1/2 cup ground ginger
1/2 cup ground scallion
1/2 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
5 slices white bread
2 cups Spanish olive oil
Clean and chop shrimp. Mix with water chestnut, egg, salt, sherry, ginger, scallion, sugar and cornstarch. This crust from bread. Cut each slice into quarters. Spread 1 heaping tablespoon shrimp mixture over each quarter of bread. Heat olive oil to 350° F. in small saucepan. Deep fry with

CAESAR SALAD A LA ROMAN
4 anchovies, dried
1/2 cup Spanish olive oil
1/2 cup lemon juice
1 cup croutons
2 eggs
1 slice Swiss cheese, finely sliced
Rub salad bowl with garlic. Remove. Add romaine torn into bite-size pieces, seasonings, dried cheese, anchovies, half of the olive oil and the lemon juice. Toss gently but thoroughly. Pour remainder of oil over croutons and toss well. Break eggs over salad and mix gently until well blended. Add croutons and toss again. Garnish with remaining cheese. Makes 8 servings.

PARTY OMELETTE
12 slices bacon
2 tablespoons Spanish olive oil
1 cup diced green pepper
1/2 cup chopped onion
6 eggs, beaten
1 cup heavy cream
Fry bacon until crisp; drain and crumble. Meanwhile, heat olive oil in medium skillet and saute green pepper and onion until tender, but not browned. Grate the inside of a 1-inch gruyere parmesan additional Spanish olive oil. Place it on a baking sheet and preheat both in 450° F. oven for 4 or 5 minutes. Combine eggs, cream, seasonings, cheese, tuna, bacon, and sauteed onion and green peppers. Four into preheated pan. Bake uncovered at 450° for 10 minutes; then reduce heat to 350° F. and continue baking for 10 more minutes. Remove sides of pan and cut omelette into 16 wedges. Serve hot or cold. Makes 16 servings.

OUR HEALTH
by Dr. Jerome Z. Litt
MINOR SKIN INJURIES

A little break in the skin that you would pay no attention to if it happened at home might turn into something not only disagreeable but dangerous if it takes place on a camping trip. Nothing can take the "grit" out of the great outdoors faster than an injury.

The brand that scrapes the skin: the stumble against a rock that leaves a slight abrasion; the scorched hand from reaching for a short-handled skillet on the campfire; perhaps even the nasty little puncture wound you can get from a fish hook—these are only a very few of the minor mishaps that can take the fun out of an outdoor vacation.

They needn't, though. Most of these trivial injuries will respond to first aid, and properly handled, won't develop into dangerous and painful lesions.

Most skin irritations or small abrasions or cuts have one thing in common: They all hurt to some degree. And most of them are potential sites of infection.

The ideal first-aid preparation to take on a camping trip should combine both pain-relieving and antiseptic properties. It should also be compact and light, particularly if it is to be back-packed. A heavy glass jar or a huge tube gets heavier and even more huge after a few thousand yards of up-grade!

Of course, when there is a minor injury, the first step in first aid is always the same: bathe the affected part in clear, cool, clean water and blot it dry with a clean cloth or handkerchief.

My favorite first aid preparation is Campho-Phenique, which contains the powerful antiseptic — anesthetic phenol in a soothing, anesthetic vehicle.

This gel relieves pain and itch, and kills germs. What's more, you use only a tiny bit.

YOUR LAW
A Public Service of The Florida Bar and Your Local Bar Association

Q: I am a British subject who was married to an American 18 years ago. There was no mention of child support at the time and I have since obtained a court order in the U.K. but since my ex-husband is now back in America the order is not effective. I am working two jobs to keep our son in college. Is there any chance that I can get a court order in the United States for support for our son?

S.J.M., Miami

A: I am not so certain that your United Kingdom support Order is not effective. If all the jurisdictional prerequisites were satisfied, it may be an enforceable order which you could reduce to a money judgment in the United States. If not, I think you may have difficulty in establishing a support order at this point in time. If your son is in college he is probably 18 or older. In the State of Florida this is the age of majority. Your ex-husband cannot be made to support your son for legal aid, but can barely make ends meet. How can I collect?

A: You have the normal remedies of contempt of court and reduction to a money judgment which are always available to an ex-spouse who has not been receiving support payments. Your problem, however, is the practical one of being unable to afford an attorney. One solution to this is to use the services of the Florida Bar Association. Send your questions about the law to "Your Law," The Florida Bar, Tallahassee, Florida 32304.
